Across the business spectrum, from the large multi-national to the expanding entrepreneur, we develop treasury solutions to meet the needs of your company. The wide and deep expertise of our treasury specialists means that almost any conceivable structured investment product and risk hedging solution is available to you. From the simple to the more complex, solutions can be developed at a sophisticated level across the asset classes including currency and interest rate markets, commodities, inflation, pensions, carbon emissions, property, equity and fund markets.

Below gives an overview of the areas in which we specialise. If you would like to understand how we might work together to the benefit of your business, please talk to your treasury specialist.

Deposits and Investment Products

To make the most of your funds, our treasury specialists can provide you with tailored solutions from competitively priced and innovative deposit products to more complex investment packages. In all cases, we will build a solution to meet your specific business requirements.

We also offer structured investment products to institutional investors and onward to the retail investor. Structured investment products are an efficient alternative to outright equity, fixed-income and commodity investments and can be customised to meet a specific investor's risk appetite and desired payoff profile. Typically such products offer some level of capital protection, with a potential uplift linked to the performance of an underlying asset.

Interest Rate Management

Debt is a significant feature of business today. Managing interest rates successfully is key to controlling costs and maintaining steady cash flows. Solutions range from straightforward fixed rates on term debt to more complex structures offering you varying degrees of protection and flexibility. In any case, we will use our extensive expertise in combining market insight with your specific interest rate profile.

Currency Management

Bank of Ireland is a leading provider of Foreign Exchange (FX) treasury services in Ireland. We present to you a comprehensive risk management offering. Whether you want to completely hedge your FX position and cement future cash flows, protect purely the downside risk or take a view on the market, we can find the solution which best matches the needs of your business. We offer a range of products from the simplest of hedges to more unique structured solutions.

Alongside all major tradable currencies, we can help you with competitive pricing and premium customer service in selected currencies across the emerging markets of South America, Africa, Europe and Asia.

In line with your requirements, we also offer a range of international payment options, currency account services and provide pricing electronically over FXall, 360T, FX Connect and Bloomberg.

Inflation Risk Management

Many businesses have an inherent exposure to inflation on their balance sheets. For example, property companies, utilities, pension funds and insurance companies generally have some form of implicit or explicit inflation risk on their books. An example of an explicit inflation risk would be a property lease linked to an inflation index. A common implicit inflation risk would be the cost of wages, which can rise with inflation. Our treasury specialists can provide you with tailored hedging solutions to remove the uncertainty associated with inflation linked cash flows.

Natural Resource Risk Management

The majority of businesses are affected in some way by natural resources. This may be through the use of oil in manufacturing or transport, the use of commodities as raw materials, or through the management of a company's carbon footprint.

Our treasury specialists continue to build our expertise across commodities, carbon, metals and agriculture and we also provide a dedicated carbon market transactional capacity. Where you have an exposure to the price of any natural resource or require access to the Carbon Emissions market, we can work closely with you in developing a solution specific to your needs.
